

He Still STANDS
TALL

He Still
STANDS TALL

The Life of
ROLAND Q. LEAVELL

Dottie L. Hudson

DOVE INSPIRATIONAL PRESS
GRETN A 2008

Copyright © 2008
By Dottie L. Hudson
All rights reserved

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Hudson, Dottie L.

He still stands tall : the life of Roland Q. Leavell / Dottie L. Hudson.

p. cm.

Includes index.

ISBN 978-1-58980-513-2 (hardcover : alk. paper) 1. Leavell, Roland Quinche, 1891-1963. 2. Baptists—United States—Clergy—Biography. 3. Theologians—United States—Biography. 4. New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary—History. I. Title.

BX6495.L38H83 2008

230.092—dc22

[B]

2007042289

Printed in the United States of America

Published by Dove Inspirational Press, an imprint of Pelican Publishing Company, Inc.

1000 Burmaster Street, Gretna, Louisiana 70053

I gratefully dedicate this book to my creative husband, Carl. Without his encouragement, his computer skills, and his inspiration, this book might never have been print-ready. Carl's ideas and words have made this story richer in content and expression. He gives of himself lovingly.

Contents

Acknowledgments	9
A Special Tribute	11
1. A Baby Born in Troubled Times	15
2. A Stable Home amid Troubled Times	17
3. A Larger World for a Developing Adult	23
4. A New Venture into the World	33
5. An Old Home, A New Vision	37
6. Building a Foundation for the Adult World	43
7. War Within and War Without	55
8. War Ends, Yet the Skirmish Continues	69
9. A Place to Belong	73
10. A Sad Search in a Distant Land	77
11. A Home of His Own	83
12. Crisis Tests Character	87
13. Peace and Joy	91
14. Destruction and Depression Intrude	105
15. A New Challenge	109
16. A Return to the Pulpit	115
17. God's New Appointment	119
18. Mission Matters	131
19. Goals and Gains	135
20. Life's Dreaded Moment	141
21. Coronation Day	147
Epilogue: Still Stands Tall	153
Index	155

Acknowledgments

Our three children, Allen Hudson, Missy Lunceford, and Denise Mercil, and their families have been a source of invaluable encouragement. They are a great cheering squad.

Lilian and Maynard Fountain, my sister and brother-in-law, have made it possible for me to monopolize our father's diaries for a long period of time and have contributed visuals that have made the story authentic.

Dr. Joe Cothen has been an encourager and editor. His personal friendship with my father has given me invaluable insights.

Beth Runnels has skillfully turned rough copy into print-worthy copy. She has gone beyond the call of duty in computer assistance. Laura Bishop's help with final copy was invaluable.

Cecelia Temple and Sheri Adamson have helped with writing techniques and suggestions. So many others have given time for interviews and suggestions, and I am grateful to each one who has walked with me on this journey.

Roland Leavell left about twenty years of diaries revealing his life journey, and we are richer for the understanding.

Roland Q. Leavell I as president of the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary

A Special Tribute

This kind of honesty requires more courage than most of us possess. Some who do not understand or accept themselves will stand in judgment. Those who have explored and accepted their own inner duplicities will grow in love and compassion.

I marvel at a man who is willing to expose himself so honestly for generations to follow. This story could not have been told with any veracity without the willingness of Roland Leavell to allow us to see into his heart and soul. I am grateful for this gift of sharing.

He Still
STANDS
TALL

